Santa Catalina Island

WINE ENTHUSIAST

Santa Catalina Island is but one California's eight coastal channel islands. The largest of them, Santa Cruz, was home to a thriving vineyard and winery, which was established in the early 1800s. Though the operation was shut down and the vines torn out after Prohibition, the Nature Conservancy allowed us to gather cuttings, and now Santa Cruz Island Zinfandel vines flourish at El Rancho Escondido on Catalina. This is history in a bottle!
